

WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED

A NUMBER OF PLANTS NEAR MANCHESTER RESUME.

A Small Blaze at Baconsville—The Negro, William Graham Who Was Shot Still Alive—Other News of Interest.

MANCHESTER BUREAU, RICHMOND TIMES, No. 121 Hull Street, BRATTLE BLOCK.

The Johnson Forge has resumed work. They started in full blast yesterday. This plant gives work to a number of skilled men.

The puddling mill at Belle Isle will start up Monday. This will put everything to work but the nail factory of the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works.

At the Southern Railway shops the car and paint men have been put to work on full time.

The alarm of fire yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock was occasioned by a small blaze at the corner of Fifth and Evans streets in one of the houses in Evansville, owned by the Marshall Cotton Mills Company. The fire department responded quickly but the blaze was put out by the neighbors with buckets of water before the department arrived. The damage was very small.

Willie Graham, the darkey who was shot in the neck last night by Sam Hall, another negro, has been resting well since the occurrence.

Nothing has been heard of Hall by the police.

TO ESTABLISH A LIBRARY.

In the Hastings Court yesterday morning Judge Ingram granted a injunction to the Atlantic Social and Library Club.

The object of the club is for the promotion of social intercourse and for the purpose of maintaining a library and reading room, and for such games as billiards, pool, dominoes, and others of like nature.

The officers of the club are J. J. Kell, president; L. H. Dorsett, vice-president; O. W. Pond, secretary and treasurer.

The board of directors are S. L. Gent, R. F. Elder, L. P. Stewart, and P. G. Dorsett.

THE APPEAL DISMISSED.

The appeal, made from the Mayor's Court, where Mayor Maurice ordered the dog owned by Mr. Geo. Payne to be killed for biting Pittsburgh Lee, the little son of Mr. Joseph Lee, came up before Judge Ingram yesterday morning.

The Judge dismissed the appeal. At the request of the court attorney, Mayor Maurice will give the matter a new trial.

MEETINGS.

The Building and Land Committee of the City Council will meet in the Auditor's office to-night at 7 o'clock.

The Library Committee will meet in the Treasurer's office Thursday night at 7 o'clock.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Council in the Council Chamber Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

The next session of the council in session for the year will be yesterday morning, Mayor Maurice disposed of the following cases:

John Gray and Came Deane (deceased); the two trap-shooters, who failed to make their appearance last Monday, paid the fine of $100.

Perry Fuller had Emily Terry arrested for trespass and misdemeanor. Emily's witnesses failed to prove the charge, so she had to pay the cost of the court, and the prisoner was discharged.

DECLARED INSANE.

A Commission of Inquiry, consisting of Magistrate W. C. Owen, W. D. Little, and A. B. Tyson, was held over Mr. G. D. Price in the Mayor's Court yesterday morning.

The commissioners decided that Mr. Price was insane. He will be held until arrangements can be made for him in Virginia.

Mr. Price imagined that some one was after him. He would take the lamp at night, and hunt the house for the supposed enemy.

He threatened to kill his wife Tuesday night, and she became alarmed and notified the police, who locked him up.

Mr. Price has been engaged with Palme's Fall of Pompeii, for several years.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The sleek old country home of Major Joseph Walker, near the city, narrowly escaped being destroyed by fire on Saturday morning about 4 o'clock. The occupants' lives were also in great danger, for had they not awakened when the fire began, the house might have been entirely enveloped in the flames before they could have escaped.

The fire started in the room occupied by Miss Agnes Walker. Some hot coals had been carelessly left in the old-fashioned fireplace when Miss Walker retired on Friday night. A defect in the heart or lower part of the chimney allowed the fire to reach the woodwork underneath. The flames were猛烈地 spreading when the王者 who were watching the fire, Major Joseph Walker, was awakened by the smoke which filled her room. She aroused her mother, and their prompt action and heroic work saved the dwelling from burning to the ground. As it was, the damage was very slight.

BRIEFS AND PERSONS.

Mr. O. Guy left yesterday morning for Boston, where he will make his future home.

Mr. C. H. Timberlake was in the city yesterday on a business trip.

The northern mail was nearly three hours late Tuesday night.

Mr. J. H. Smith of Chester, was in the city yesterday morning, calling on relatives.

The Funeral of Mr. Akers.

The children of the American Revolution will hold an important meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the rooms of the Virginia Historical Society.

A large attendance of the members is desired.

The Shaker's IDEAS of MEDICINE.

Now a days when a man goes to his doctor, he is usually told that he has some unheard of disease with a long name, and when he leaves the office he does not know whether it is St. Vitus Disease or consumption that is gradually undermining his health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the most prevalent diseases were all attributed to faulty digestion.

He then went on to say that a child of average intelligence knows that putrid meat or decaying vegetables are poisons, and must be avoided, and yet these same foods, even if taken into the stomach in the freshest possible condition soon decompose unless digested and "sweated."

In such cases the resulting poisons enter the system, when aches and pains, weakness and debility soon follow upon a natural consequence.

It was recognition of this that led the Shakers to their very simple commands of health.

The venerable old man whom the writer saw was only too glad to discuss his pet subject. He said that's strange as it might seem, very few doctors realized that three-quarters of the